

What's in it for me?

Volunteering with SPCA is a great way to meet like-minded kids and adults who share your enthusiasm for animals and their welfare, and become part of our SPCA community. There are lots of other benefits too:

- > Gaining new skills or developing existing ones
- > The chance to try out something new
- > Doing something useful and rewarding for animals in need
- > Gaining a sense of achievement
- > Giving something back to your community
- > Developing communication skills and confidence

The opportunities to learn are endless, and the more you put into your volunteer role the more you will get out of it.

Volunteering with SPCA

You must be at least 16 years old to volunteer on-site at our SPCA Centres, and 15 years old to volunteer at our Op Shops. But don't worry, if you are younger than 15, there are still heaps of ways you can volunteer to help animals in need.

Make Enrichment Toys

Animals need enrichment to keep them mentally and physically fit. You can help by making fun enrichment toys that will provide SPCA animals with entertainment and exercise throughout the day. There are plenty of toys to choose from on our Kids' Portal, and they are a HUGE help. www.spca.nz/thingstomake

Donate Goods

You could raise awareness about SPCA and organise a donation drive at your school. You could create posters to display around school, add a notice in your school's newsletter and collect much needed items like towels, blankets, and toys for animals in SPCA care, or kitten and puppy food that we can give out to animals in need in your community.

Fundraise

You could hold a school fundraiser such as a mufti day or bake sale, and/or participate in one of our annual events, such as Cupcake Day or Pets of the Year. www.spca.nz/take-part

Foster

Your family may also be interested in becoming a foster family.

Fostering is when volunteers give animals a temporary home and provide them with care, medical treatment (if required) and socialisation before they are ready to find their new forever home. SPCA supplies everything you need to be a foster family.

To foster for SPCA, the person taking responsibility for foster animals needs to be at least 18 years old. However, your parent or guardian can take this role and support you with your fostering duties.
